SAIN AND PRANTSULATION OF THE PRANTSULATION OF THE

ASSOCIATION OF GAY & LESBIAN PSYCHIATRISTS

April, 1989

Editor's Column David Scasta, M.D.

I am finally getting the Newsletter out. I must apologize for being so delayed. I hope it is not too late to help with plans for San Francisco. I have been in the process of starting a new job, moving house and office, finishing taxes, and trying to get the San Francisco Guide and this Newsletter together. But I am beginning to see the light at the end of the tunnel. The movers come tomorrow. My new address (and the address for the Newsletter and your dues records) is as follows:

R.D. 2; Box 1439 New Hope, PA 18938

Speaking of dues, I want to thank all of you who have gotten your dues in. Normally I expect to receive about fifty per cent of the dues in the first two months after the February Newsletter. I then spend the next ten months badgering you to get the other half in. This year, we have topped 70% paid by the middle of April. Outstanding! Prompt payment of dues saves us the additional time and money of second, third, and fourth billings. I thank you. AGLP thanks you.

Donations to our medical student travel fund have been very encouraging also. This year we did not have any large donations, but many more of you have contributed. $1150.00 had been collected by the middle of April. We should see a larger group of medical students at the Convention this year thanks to your generosity.

The second Issue of the Journal of Gay & Lesbian Psychotherapy is delayed in production. Hopefully, it will be out soon. I have been pleased to see a small increase in article submissions. We are always looking for good, clinical articles. This year the AGLP members of the Board of Editors will be participating in a grand rounds to be published in the Journal. Look for it in the third issue. On Sunday, at 4:00 pm, JGLP will be showing the gay French film, L'Homme Blesse (The Wounded Man) by Patrice Chereau, et. al. presented at the Cannes Film Festival. A couple of psychoanalytically minded writers have agreed to review the film and write an analytical comment about the characters in the film for presentation in the Journal. Everyone is invited, however, to watch. It will be shown in the Hospitality Suite in the St. Francis.

I want to thank Norm Hartstein, M.D. for his kind words in his column this issue. At the risk of turning the Newsletter into maudlin mutual admiration, I want to thank Norm for all that he has done for AGLP. He served as AGLP's treasurer for a number of years before taking on the mantle of the presidency. Few people are ever aware of how much work the presidency really is. It is an omnipresent, coercive, time gobbling monster that can easily overwhelm mere mortal beings. Norm has held up well. We owe Norm a debt of gratitude as well as to all of our past presidents. For that reason, the Awards Banquet this year will be in honor of our past presidents:

Frank Rundle, M.D.
Stuart Nichols, M.D.
James Krajeski, M.D.
David Kessler, M.D.
Terry Stein, M.D.
Robert Cabaj, M.D.
Norman Hartstein, M.D.

Also honored will be the late, Emery Heterick, M.D., who, although never president, was one of the founders of AGLP. We are hoping that his lover, Damien Martin, Ph.D., will be able to accept the award for Emery which will be named in his honor.

After the Annual Meeting is over, I will publish a directory of all members who specifically asked to be listed in the directory when they paid their dues. We have delayed printing the directory because we wanted to make sure that members realized that 1) the directory cannot be confidential if it is distributed to all members, and 2) to be included, a member MUST initial a statement that he or she wants to be included and understands that it is not confidential. If you have not done so (checking the paragraph off and not signing initials means you have not done so), please let me know at the above address by the end of May to be included.

See you in San Francisco. Be sure to drop by the AGLP booth in the Moscone Center.

PRESIDENT'S COLUMN

Norman B. Hartstein, M.D.

It is with mixed emotions that I sit down to write my final column as president of this association. While I have enjoyed the challenge and the opportunity to address important issues in this column, I have rarely been satisfied with my writings, and I have always felt rushed by the deadlines. I expect that I shall feel the same when I complete this column.

As I look back over the two years that I have served as president of the Association of Gay and Lesbian Psychiatrists, I am most aware of the unfinished business. The agenda for the Executive Committee meeting in the Fall of 1988 looked much like the agenda from the meeting in 1987. Many of those items will again be on our agenda in 1989. While I am aware that progress was made on many of the issues that were addressed, I am even more aware of the work still to be done. I give Peggy Hanley-Hackenbruck my pledge to continue my efforts on those projects that she might want me to complete.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the members of the Executive Committee of AGLP who have worked with me during the past two years. I don't know if the members fo AGLP are really aware of the duties and responsibilities of the officers. Steve Atkinson, the vice-president, has been responsible for the difficult task of organizing the annual meetings. Because the meetings last year ran so smoothly, Steve's efforts may not have been fully appreciated. Phil Cushman, the secretary has been responsible for preparing the minutes from the business and executive committee meetings. Those of you who have attended those meetings and then read his concise, cogent minutes certainly marvel at this accomplishments. Phil has also compiled the referral list of AGLP. Larry Prater, the treasurer, holds the office that I previously held, and I know from first hand experience the time and effort required in keeping up-to-date and accurate financial records. I am also most appreciative of Larry's efforts to secure tax exempt status for this organization.

I think that David Scasta's effectiveness as the newsletter editor has been repeatedly demonstrated to you all. But as I have already complained about my difficulty with deadlines, I am in awe of his capacity to design and execute an ever-improving and enlarging publication. He has been responsible for publicizing the activities of AGLP through advertisements in the APA press, by preparing effective and informative brochures and posters for each annual meeting, and by obtaining our beautiful banner. I know that the other members of the Executive Committee will understand my devoting a paragraph to acknowledge the incomparable efforts of Dr. Scasta. It is all the more remarkable that he has managed to edit the new Journal of Gay and Lesbian Psychotherapy without neglecting his commitment to AGLP.

Bob Cabaj, the immediate past president, was responsible for showing me the ropes. I am most grateful for his guidance, his patience, his persistence, his wisdom and his wit. When we recently talked, we agreed that it takes about two years to learn how to do this job. I also enjoyed the support and encouragement of the other past presidents. I owe a special debt of gratitude to Terry Stein who really got me involved with this association and to James Krajeski who has served as my direct link with the APA.

I want to acknowledge Peggy Hanley-Hackenbruck who has served as president-elect for the past year. We neglected to print new stationary last May, so Peggy's role has not been adequately acknowledged. Peggy has really been one of my mentors and has been most responsible for persevering at the difficult and, at times, thankless task of making AGLP a truly co-sexual organization in practice not merely in name. I am looking forward to May 8th, when Peggy will become president of AGLP, not only because I will be relieved of so many responsibilities, but also because I look forward to the new directions in which she will lead this association.

Finally, I want to recognize you the membership and friends of AGLP who have stimulated, challenged, and sustained me during the past two years. I regret that I have not been more effective at getting more of you involved with AGLP activities. While I initially felt I was a sucker when I got stuck with my first job to coordinate the convention activities in Los Angeles in 1984, in retrospect, I realize how fortunate I have been. I have met so many of you and learned so much by participating in this organization. If I failed to involve you personally up to now, I hope still to find a way to pass on to you the opportunities and experiences that I have been so fortunate to have had as an officer of the Association of Gay and Lesbian Psychiatrists. Thank you all, and I look forward to seeing you in San Francisco.

Book Review: Contemporary Perspectives on Psychotherapy with Lesbians and Gay Men -Eds. Stein & Cohen

Carmelina Lewis

This publication compiled a series of insightful articles, which review the clinical issues involved in the psychotherapy of gay and lesbian clients. It presents a multidisciplinary review of the paradigm shift taking place in the societal view of homosexuality and its direct effect on treatment.

The overall purposes of this volume, according to the editors, Terry Stein and Carol Cohen, are to help stimulate further exploration of the different aspects of homosexuality and to expand the theoretical understanding of clinicians to these issues. They assert the need for more valid, gay-affirmative research studies to diminish the still existing cultural stigmatization.

It is the authors basic stance that since psychotherapists not only affect cultural beliefs but are, in turn, influenced by them; they can initiate treatment with a distorted, judgmental view causing a detrimental effect on the patient's life. According to the psychodynamic approach, followed by all the contributors to this text, the patient should express his feelings freely and the therapist should maintain a degree of neutrality while interpreting the material expressed. However, due to the therapist's unconscious identification with societal norms, and to the patient's perception of the existing stigma; this stance cannot be maintained at all times. Thus, throughout the text, the transferential and countertransferential aspects of therapy are emphasized.

Terry Cohen and Carol Cohen elaborate on their psychodynamic framework in their introductory chapter. They, also, present their belief that homosexuality is a "variation of human behavior" and not an illness. However it can coexist with any type of psychopathology, which need to be addressed in therapy.

The first chapter: Psychotherapy with Gay Men and Lesbians: A History of Controversy, written by James Krajeski presents a useful review of the changing trends in the research and therapy involving homosexuals. Krajeski states that in spite of the lack of generalizable dynamics found in the research, the assumption that homosexuality is a condition with a specific etiology and cure has prevailed.

In the last decade, the goal of therapy shifted from altering sexual orientation to assist in the process of developing a homosexual identity. Krajeski finishes this section by indicating that t his process varies between individuals and is affected by the person's homophobia.

In the Second Chapter, Carol Cohen and Terry Stein study some of the effects of a patient's homosexuality on psychotherapy. Responding to a lack of universal definitions in the present research, the authors first define some of the necessary terms: homosexuality, coming out, gay identity formation and, then, expand on internalized and institutional homophobia. This is followed by a clinical discussion of some of the most common issues raised by gay individuals in therapy. This section presents one of the most important contributions of this book to the literature.

After a review of some general theoretical aspects of psychotherapy, the different contributors to this volume focus either on issues relevant to gay men or lesbians. The papers include couple therapy with lesbians, therapy with lesbian mothers, individual, couple and group therapy with gay men and psychotherapy and AIDS In view of the lack of attention psychodynamic theory and the scientific literature in general have paid to lesbian psychologies, Beverly Burch's and JoAnn Loulan's articles about lesbian couple s and motherhood present valuable contributions to feminist psy-

Beverly Burch describes in her article an essential aspect of Burch defines merger or lesbian relationships, the pull for merger. Burch defines merger or enmeshment as a state of psychic unity in which the boundaries between two individuals are temporarily unclear. According to Burch, merger tends to appear often in lesbian couples because of "gender-related intrapsychic dynamics" and their unified fight against stigmatization.

JoAnn Loulan discusses the role of the therapist with lesbian mothers. Due to pervasive lack of social and emotional support for lesbian mothers either in the heterosexual or gay communities, the therapist must provide emotional support and parental guidance. As a result of the lack of role models, the transference and countertransference in therapy can intensify and needs to be interpreted carefully. Even though Loulan's presentation of some of the general concerns confronted by lesbian mothers was very informative, her discussion of the stages of choosing motherhood and her suggested therapeutic interventions require further elabo-

Nikki Sachs explores in her article another aspect to lesbian motherhood, her experience as a pregnant lesbian therapist. She discusses different possible transferential reactions to the pregnancy such as feelings of abandonment, narcissistic injury and sibling rivalry. Sachs presents a valuable review of the literature involving the pregnancy of the clinician, social views on lesbians, lesbian families, merging in lesbian couples and in the transferen-

tial and countertransferential interactions in therapy

Carmen de Monteflores, in her Notes on the Management of Difference, describes some of the issues that confront Latina lesbians specifically and homosexuals as a minority in general. In this article, the author combines the hypotheses of several social theorists, such as Goffman and his view on stigma and on the institutionalization of differences between groups of people and psychoanalysts, such as Kohut and his theory on development of self-image and self-esteem.

Monteflores' analysis of the concept of difference as an intrinsic part of an individual's development of a gay identity, and therefore of the treatment process as well, serves as a useful model for clinicians working with the gay communities. However, many of the concepts Monteflores reviewed in her article remained unclear, and require further elaboration.

The following chapters discuss different treatment modalities involving gay men. Richard Isay, for example, presents psychoanalysis as a possible treatment modality for gay patients. After an interesting review of the literature, Isay indicates that, for the most part, psychoanalysis has contributed to the societal view of homosexuality as an illness.

Recently, many analysts, however, have changed their therapeutic goal from altering the sexual orientation of the gay patient to helping them resolve intrapsychic and interpersonal "conflicts that interfere with the most gratifying expression of their sexuality." Nevertheless, at the end of the article, Isay makes a useful suggestion, train suitable gay analysts who can assist in the advancement of knowledge about gay patients.

Robert Schwartz and Norman Hartstein describe their experiences leading therapy groups with gay men. They indicate that treatment groups can facilitate the coming out process and the development of a gay identity. However, the authors fail to clarify the inherent differences involved in treating a group of gay men with character disorders than a group of higher functioning, ho-

Marshall Forstein reviews, in his article, another treatment modality, couple therapy with gay men. He presents important psychodynamic issues involved in a gay affirmative therapeutic process. This valuable discussion includes the effect of the male socialization process, the development of the capacity for intimacy, the coming out process and the process of identity formation on male coupling. Forstein, also, review the effects of society's view on sexuality and of the present fear of AIDS. He concludes that the therapist must be aware of the patients' sexual object choice and their development of a gender role identity in order to assist gay couples.

Stuart Nichols describes in his article his clinical experience working with AIDS patients. He recommends clinicians to combine in their treatment plan, crisis interventions, stress reduction, cognitive problem-solving techniques in a supportive atmosphere that will assist the patient to strengthen social and family support networks. According to Nichols, this therapeutic process will promote an existential exploration of the meaning of life.

Nichols cautions clinicians to be aware and to neutralize any unconscious homophobia or great fear of death they might experience. Nichols, then, presents a useful discussion of some of the unique clinical issues involved in working with AIDS patients, such as the different stages involved in the patient's adjustment process and their effect in therapy.

Nichols gives an important reminder, that clinicians can be effective participants in social progress by assisting society in dealing more appropriately with issues of sexuality and death.

This view of clinicians as creators of social change with their therapeutic interventions is shared by all the contributors to this volume. They recognize that first clinicians must become aware of their unconscious acceptance of cultural forces and biases in order to assist others appropriately.

The authors direct the information presented in this text to educate practicing clinicians in the specific needs of gay patients. However, the different authors had some difficulty in agreeing on the specific level of experience of the clinicians, shifting from very complex psychoanalytic framework to rather simplistic definitions of treatment. Nevertheless, the information presented is a valuable contribution to therapist's and society's understanding of homosexuality. (Ms. Lewis is a graduate Psy.D. Student at Hahnemann Medical School)

AGLP Winter Meeting

On Saturday, February 25th, AGLP Executive Committee members, Steve Atkinson, M.D., Peggy Hackenbruck, M.D., Norm Hartstein, M.D., and Larry Prater, M.D. met with psychiatrists from the Northern California region at the home of Jim Paulsen in San Francisco. This first winter meeting of the Executive Committee was scheduled in response to a proposal at the Fall meeting that AGLP hold an additional meeting during the Winter months. The date and site of this meeting was selected to coincide with the annual meeting of the American Group Psychotherapy Association.

Participants were able to finalize many of the plans for AGLP's annual meeting scheduled for May 5-11, 1989. The half-day meeting proved to be quite productive. The feasibilitive Committee in May. Suggestions from the membership for possible dates and sites for a 1990 winter meeting would be appreciated.

Activities for Significant Others of AGLP Members

For four years partners/spouses/significant others of gay and lesbian psychiatrists have scheduled a discussion in the AGLP Hospitality Suite during the APA Annual Meetings. Last year in Montreal 17 people came and we had a lively discussion about what its like when your significant other is a psychiatrist. This year we have scheduled the group discussion for Tuesday from 11:00 am to 1:00 pm in the Hospitality Suite. In addition, we are planning a trip to Sausolito for lunch on Monday, May 8th. We will meet at the Blue and Gold Fleet Dock Building (Pier 39 on Fisherman's Warf) at 11:30 am departing at 11:45 am for lunch and shopping. Since there are frequent return departures, you can choose your own departure time. For information about these activities, or if you simply want to meet other AGLP partners, check with the significant other staffing the table at the Sunday Night Opening Reception. I look forward to seeing old friends and meeting new ones in San Francisco.

AGLP Student Liaison Report

Keith Courtney and I are busy working to make arrangements for students planning to attend the meeting in San Francisco. We have received several requests thus far for assistance with travel. By the time this article is distributed, the deadline of April 6, 1908 for travel assistance requests will probably have already passed. We are attempting to determine the number of students attending who may need travel assistance so that any money made available through contributions of AGLP members can be appropriated as needed. These contributions are greatly appreciated by the medical students as they make it possible for some students to attend who would not otherwise be able to attend.

Keith is attempting to arrange student housing for the meeting. Anyone who might be interested in providing housing for a medical students attending the meeting please contact me as soon as possible. Please let me know whether or not you will have access to a vehicle while in San Francisco, because this may determine whether the use of some available housing is feasible or not. I would appreciate hearing from any students planning to attend, regardless if any assistance is needed, so that we will be able to coordinate a meeting of the students present. I look forward to seeing everyone in San Francisco.
